

I, someone from Sweden has written to you across the world to ask for help in this matter. It is urgent and I hope you will do something before the world is ruined thanks to A.I.

I don't believe the governments of the world is realizing how this is destroying society in general, if they did, they would have stopped this years ago.

Work in all areas will be eradicated, it is already happening. I lay on my bed every night with a sense of doom looming over me, when I began feeling what this means. No one is safe anymore from a life in poverty only the ruling class that can look down on the newly made peasants who are not needed for work. When the opposite is true, humans are needed in all areas of life, we need each other. We are social beings.

We will never know if something is created by a human mind, if another human being is trying to reach me with their own feelings and not some mumbo jumbo stolen from other artists with their own intention with the art. It is a copyright issue to say the least, it has in the past been a strong piece of law creators has used to keep their rights but now we are helpless. Opt out is the usual way the cooperations stealing information, like they're overfeeding a goose for foie gras of the junk food kind. No one has been asked, the creators are met with contempt by the stealers who harass them for asking for this to stop, and then try to sell what they make with glee.

How are we supposed to know what is real anymore? Who made what and with what intent? No one protects the creators who are so vulnerable in this age of copy and paste.

All "A.I." (it is not really A.I. so we're mistaken from the beginning in the terms we call them.) created without true openness and consent are the work of true evil. The owners making millions of course say they're in the right. Companies salivating over how many jobs they can cut in all areas, no one is safe!

The owners and especially users of their so-called tools need to be told in no uncertain terms, that it is wrong. Abusing the excruciatingly slow way of the law is too late for any effect by this point. Not only the whole creative world is being destroyed as we speak, but the world is getting dumber day by day. Creating things, with good quality takes time and it must be that way. By encouraging people making creative work, we humans develop further. Children learn by creating as well and if all they learn is to put in a few words in a program and get made creative junk food. They won't get far at all in thinking for themselves, learn anything or feel the sense of pride you get when you make something, all by yourself. We will all get dumber, lose all jobs and the best of society if things keep going this way. Fake news is turning into something not so easy to tell anymore with dying journalism written by chat GPT, not to mention the legal issues, when we won't now if a recording is real in a trial? The fact that they are pumping out information without quality checking at so fast speed is nauseating. Amazon will be full with A.I. written books, and they will be read on Audible with computerized voices... The companies that pay for creators to create things will just use A.I. instead. I can that already in the Writers protests going on at the moment, so afraid they will lose their job any day now.

I can see all artistic things that will be killed off, thanks to it. Am I now supposed to have my heart broken every day by wondering if the art I look at was made only by the computer, with no human truly behind it when looking at art is one of the few ways I connect to the world? No true watermarks are used to show if it is A.I. and the abusers of this system don't want to use it either. That the likes of Midjourney and Chat GPT encourage the use for creative purposes and makes it so easy to download it on your computer just shows how incredibly ridiculous the world has gotten. No one stops it, people aren't aware of how bad it has gotten and creators try to do what they can but it is a fight against Goliath.

I realize we are in a digital age, in fact in many ways I appreciate it. People make incredible things thanks to computers, their own things. From their hearts, we get art in many ways thanks to the internet and I do I appreciate it a lot. Now I worry if I will have a job in the future, if my family will have a future? My sister is a model and writer, will she have a work in the future when people decide "computer models and authors" are the way to go. They won't have her smile, her pretty blue eyes. It won't be a human I see on the screen when I look at the clothing shop, who has a family that loves her, a woman that lived life with the joy and pain it causes. The books made by A.I. won't have her thoughts about life in it, made to connect with others.

Will scientists even think anymore, when they can just ask a computer to write their article. People always take the easy way out, we are lazy by nature. Student cheat more and more know and even encouraged by the systems. GPT chat always screams silently to you, "Write a book with me! Write your essay with me!" Though the satisfaction when we have made something by our self is indescribable and that feeling is about to be killed off slowly.

Why are all companies in such a awful hurry to employ A.I. and trying to remove jobs? Of course it is for money and progress, but only for the present...I am deeply disappointed in Microsoft and Google encouraging this.

I am painfully aware that I can't stop the future but I can at least make write this paper to ask you to try and make the future a little more fair, with my own words till the very end.

Things have to be open to the public, what data do they use? If they use data without consent, it is stealing and they have done this for years. Can't creators and jobs be protected? Can A.I. use stop being encouraged in the creative fields? I believe you can help there...and I can only pray that you at least try. Legal use, regulation and control is the least that must be used in these times. I see you mention accountability and I can only hope that is what you are looking for.

I will end with the thought I ask myself everyday about these creative A.I.

Why? Why is this even necessary in any way at all?

Thank you for reading a worried persons thoughts.
